2. Topic Sentence: At some point, parents must decide whether or not to allow their children to have pets.
The writer wants to explain that parents have different opinions about whether their children should have pets.

3. Cats are good pets, but I do not like it when their hair is on the furniture.

4. Seven.

5. Concluding sentence: In sum, although many children want a pet, parents are divided on this topic.

Possible answer: The topic sentence and the concluding sentence both discuss the main idea of parents allowing their children to have pets.

Activity 8, page 10

1. Topic sentences:

1.1 Brazil and Chile are near each other, but these two South American countries differ in geography, population, and language.

1.2 An egg salad sandwich is one of the easiest and most delicious foods to make for lunch.

Possible answer: The topic sentence for “Brazil and Chile” clearly states the three points in the paragraph. It’s not as clear in “An Easy Sandwich” what the paragraph will be about.

2. Concluding sentences:

1.1 These countries are near each other, but they are clearly different in several important ways.

1.2 By following all of these steps, anyone can make this delicious sandwich.

Possible answer: The topic sentence and concluding sentence in Paragraph 1.1 both state that the countries are near each other, but different in several ways. The topic sentence in Paragraph 1.2 talks about how easy it is to make this sandwich, and the concluding sentence repeats this idea by saying “anyone can make this delicious sandwich.”

Activity 9, pages 10–12

Activity 14, page 15

Possible title: Two Great Japanese Cities

One reason many people want to visit Asia is to see Japan. In many people's opinions, the best places to visit in Japan are Tokyo and Kyoto. Tokyo is a very modern city with many tall buildings. In fact, the skyscrapers in Tokyo are some of the tallest buildings in the world. However, the city skyline with these incredibly tall buildings does not look like the scenery in Kyoto at all. Life in Kyoto moves more slowly than life in Tokyo. Kyoto is not only smaller but also much older. Kyoto was the capital of Japan a long time ago. There are still many historic buildings in Kyoto, so tourists can see them all over the city. Life in these two places is quite different, and tourists visit each city for very different reasons.

Paragraph 2.2

River A is an important part of the forest, and the quality of the river affects the environment around it. The fresh, clear water is home to a wide variety of fish and plants. The fish enjoy the abundant supply of insects near the beautiful river. The tall trees near the river are green and healthy. Wild animals come to drink the cool water and rest in the shade of the trees along the river.

Paragraph 2.3

River B is an important part of the forest, and the quality of the river affects the environment around it. The slow, brown water does not contain fish or plants. The fish fight to catch the very limited number of insects that live near the dirty river. The old trees near the river are dying. They do not provide enough cover for the wild animals that try to drink from the polluted river.

Paragraph 3.5

Because Malaysia and Thailand are next to each other, we might think that these two countries share many similarities. In some ways, this is true. For example, both countries are warm all year long. Both have many miles of beautiful beaches that attract tourists. In addition, the economy of both countries is growing. However, there are also several clear differences. For one, Malaysians and Thais speak completely different languages. The population of Malaysia is about 31 million while the population of Thailand is about 69 million. Thailand has a king, but Malaysia does not. Finally, Malaysia was part of Britain at one time, but Thailand was never British. Therefore, the fact that two countries are near each other does not always mean that they are similar.

Paragraph 4.4

The menu at Fresh Market in downtown Springfield has five main dishes, which are simple but very delicious. My number one dish there is pasta with fresh vegetables. The pasta is cooked perfectly, and the vegetables include broccoli, onions, tomatoes, and corn. My second favorite main dish is the spicy chicken and brown rice soup. The chicken is a little hot for some people's tastes, but many people really like the fact that you get brown rice instead of the more boring white rice. The other main dishes are fried chicken with curry potatoes, Greek salad with grilled shrimp, and fried fish with vinegar chips. All three of these use the freshest ingredients and taste great. ~~The food at Paul's Bistro is also very good.~~ If you eat a meal at Fresh Market, I am sure you will enjoy it tremendously.

Paragraph 4.5

It seems like the number of continents would be a simple fact, but actually, the number depends on where you live. In the United States, for example, students learn that there are seven continents. These seven are North America, South America, Europe, Africa, Asia, Australia, and Antarctica. In Europe, however, many students learn that there are six continents. They learn that North America and South America are one continent, which they call the Americas. ~~Panama is the southern end of North America, but it used to be part of Colombia, which is in South America.~~ In some countries, Europe and Asia are combined into one continent called Eurasia. In others, Antarctica is not considered a continent. It is interesting that different regions disagree on the definition of continent. Perhaps in the future, all countries will agree on what a continent is and how many there are on Earth.

Paragraph 4.6

There are three good options for traveling between Rome and Paris. The fastest way is by plane. However, flying between these two cities can be a little expensive unless you can find a cheap airline ticket. The second way is by train, which is very popular with many tourists. ~~In fact, Rome and Paris are visited each year by millions of students from all over.~~ The train is not expensive and the service is very good, but the overnight trip takes about 14 hours. Finally, many people take a bus. The bus is the cheapest of the three options, but it takes up to 22 hours, which means it takes the most time. If tourists research each of these three travel options, they will certainly find an option that works well for them.

Paragraph 4.8

When I started college, I was surprised at the amount of studying that was necessary. I had to change my study habits. In high school, I rarely studied, yet my grades were good. In college, all my professors thought their class was the most important. ~~My favorite class in college was British history.~~ Each professor assigned a tremendous amount of homework. As a result, my free time became very limited. Reading assignments, group projects, and research replaced my time with friends. My classes kept me so busy that I only saw my friends on Saturday nights. This schedule was a big change from high school, where I used to play sports, have fun, and see my friends several times a week.

Possible concluding sentence: While college is a lot of hard work, I am enjoying it and now I value the time with my friends much more than I did in high school.

Paragraph 4.9

There are at least four easy ways to cook an egg. The first and probably the easiest way is to boil it. It is the easiest way because the egg is not opened. Just drop the egg into a pot of water and boil it for eight minutes. Another easy way is to scramble it. All you need is a fork to mix the egg before you put it into a hot frying pan. A third way is to fry it "over easy." Just put the egg into the pan without breaking the yellow center (the yolk). After a minute or so, turn the egg over to cook it on the other side. Finally, poaching involves cooking the egg in boiling water. Break the egg into a small metal cup that is sitting in a pan of very hot, shallow water. Poaching an egg takes only five minutes. ~~Some people believe that brown eggs taste better than white eggs.~~

Possible concluding sentence: I recommend trying a new way to cook this convenient and delicious food.

Paragraph 4.10

When bad weather, thunder, and strong winds mix, the result is a dangerous storm, but the name for that storm differs according to where the storm occurs. When a big storm forms in the Atlantic or eastern Pacific Ocean, it is called a "hurricane." This type of storm can be dangerous to people living in the United States, Mexico, Central America, or the Caribbean Islands. When a large storm begins in the southern Pacific Ocean, this same type of storm is called a "cyclone." ~~Cyclones are less common than hurricanes due to the colder temperature of the water in the southern Pacific Ocean.~~ Finally, if this same storm begins in the northwestern Pacific Ocean, it is referred to as a "typhoon." Typhoons hit areas such as Japan, Guam, or the Philippines.

Possible concluding sentence: While the names for these storms may differ, their impact can be harmful wherever they occur.

There is a lot to know about the sport of hockey. Hockey is popular in many countries, including Canada and the United States. The game is played on ice, and the players wear skates to move around. Hockey players can score a point if they hit a special disk called a puck into the goal. However, this is not as easy as it seems because a special player called a goalie guards the goal. The goalie's job is to keep the puck away from the goal. The next time you see a hockey game on television, perhaps you will be able to follow the action better because you have this information.

Paragraph 5.5

Teh Tarik is a popular beverage that is served in restaurants and markets in some Asian countries, such as Malaysia, and Singapore. Teh Tarik is made with tea and milk, and its name means “pulled tea.” To make Teh Tarik, add four teaspoons of black tea to boiling water. Allow the mixture to cook on a low fire for five minutes. Then pour the tea into a separate cup, and add four teaspoons of condensed milk. Stir the mixture briefly. With your hands far apart, pour the mixture into an empty cup in your other hand. Then pour the mixture back into the original cup. Do this several times. Be careful not to spill it. As you do this, it looks like you are pulling the tea, and this explains the name of this delicious drink. When the mixture is thick and has a white top, pour it into a clear glass. Drinking this wonderful tea is as enjoyable as watching someone prepare it.

Paragraph 5.7

In Japan, snow monkeys are very interesting animals that have adapted in several ways to the cold winters. First, they travel less in the winter and spend more time in hot springs to stay warm. ~~Thousands of tourists come to see these interesting monkeys every spring.~~ Many snow monkeys sleep in trees to avoid being covered by the heavy snow that can fall during the night. In addition, their very thick hair protects them from extremely cold temperatures. Snow monkeys also change their diet during the winter. During warmer months, they eat fruits, seeds, young leaves, and other foods. When these foods are not available in winter, snow monkeys find food in the ground or eat fish from the hot springs. These remarkable changes allow snow monkeys to live farther north than any other monkey in the world and make this animal one of the most interesting on Earth.

Paragraph 5.8

Polar bears have unique bodies that help them live in the harsh weather of the Arctic. They are large animals that weigh up to 1,800 pounds (817 kilograms). The body fat from all this weight helps keep them warm. Their heavy white fur not only protects them from icy winds but also helps them hide in the heavy snow. ~~It snows a lot in the Arctic.~~ The bears have five long, sharp claws that they use to walk safely on the ice and to catch their food. Polar bears are truly amazing animals.

Paragraph 5.9

Keeping score in tennis is a little complicated. To win a match, a player usually needs to win two sets. To win a set, a player needs to win six games before the other player does. Thus, a set score might be 6-2 or 6-4, for example. To win a game, a player has to win four points before the other player. In most sports, the points are numbered in a very simple and usual order: 1, 2, 3, etc. In baseball, for example, the first score is 1, the second is 2, etc. However, in tennis, the first point in a game is 15, the second point is 30, and the third point is 40. The final point is simply called game.

Paragraph 5.10

Many high-frequency words are common because they have several meanings. For example, the word take can mean “to get with your hands” or “to use a bus.” The word book can mean “something you read” or “to make a reservation for a trip.”

The word right can mean “the opposite of left,” but this same word also means “correct.” Finally, the word current can mean “something that is happening now” or “the movement of air, water, or electricity.” These four examples show why it can be difficult to learn common vocabulary in English.

Paragraph 5.12

The Everglades region consists of a huge area of very wet land that can be found only in southern Florida. Water is extremely important to this unique environment. This area was formed by hundreds of years of flooding from Lake Okeechobee after heavy rains. These floods always provided the land with new water to support its wide variety of plants and animals. Unfortunately, people and nature are now taking away too much water from the Everglades. For example, the Miami River, Little River, and New River all take water away from the Everglades. Even worse, man-made dams and canals prevent flooding, but without this flooding or other source of fresh water, the Everglades will die one day. Only time will tell whether this unique area will survive or be lost forever.

Activity 4, page 109

Nature’s Worst Storm

A hurricane is a dangerous storm that has high winds and heavy rain. (subj adj clause) Along coasts, the heavy rain often results in floods that destroy entire towns. (subj adj clause) and many hurricanes have winds that can exceed 100 miles per hour. Hurricane season in the Atlantic Ocean is between April and November. However, August and September are the months that people usually think of when they think of hurricanes. (obj adj clause) The worst hurricanes are usually in late summer and early fall. Modern technology now makes it possible for people who live on the coast (subj adj clause) to know in advance if there is the possibility of a hurricane hitting their region. However, this was not always the case. In 1900, for example, there was a hurricane in Galveston, Texas, that killed thousands of residents. (subj adj clause) Although we know much more about hurricanes now and can keep track of their movements, they continue to be one of the most dangerous weather events.

1. We can see patience in a teacher who works with young children.
2. Unfortunately, in our modern society, people often lack simple patience.
3. I define patience as the ability to stay calm even when a situation is difficult.

Patience

Patience means the ability to continue doing something even if you do not see any results right away. ¹ We can see patience in a teacher who works with young children. The teacher repeats things many times and does not get angry when a child does not listen immediately. We can see patience in a clerk who treats a customer politely even though the clerk has already been working with other customers for seven or eight hours. We can see patience in a person who is waiting in line at the grocery store on a very busy day. ² Unfortunately, in our modern society, people often lack simple patience. People nowadays expect immediate results all the time. ³ I define patience as the ability to stay calm even when a situation is difficult.

Activity 15, page 117

Seward's Folly

A folly is a foolish act that has a bad or a very strange result. Alaska was called "Seward's Folly" because Secretary of State William Seward convinced Congress to buy Alaska from Russia. Alaska is now the largest oil-producing state in the United States, but buying it from Russia in 1867 was then considered a foolish act. At that time, many Americans thought that it was a waste of money. However, they were wrong. Large amounts of gold and other minerals have been found in Alaska. Alaska is also important because it produces oil for the United States. Perhaps the purchase of Alaska in 1867 seemed like a bad decision at the time, but today we know that buying Alaska was certainly not a folly.

Many people think serving in tennis is difficult, but the following steps show that it is quite easy. If you are left-handed, you should substitute the word left for right in these directions. First, use your left hand to throw the ball about three feet in the air. The best position for the ball is just to the right of your head. At the same time, move your racket behind your shoulder with your right hand so that your elbow is pointed toward the sky. Just before the ball reaches its peak, begin to swing your racket forward as high as you can. Hit the ball into the small box on the opposite side of the net. After you hit the ball, continue swinging your racket down and across the front of your body. After you have completed the serve, your racket should be near your left knee.

In my opinion, all high school students should definitely volunteer in their community. First of all, it increases our general motivation. While some may claim that students should only study during the school year, research shows that volunteering improves students' motivation both in and out of the classroom. Second, volunteering helps students' academic performance. In a recent poll by the student government, 71 percent of students who volunteered were better able to manage their time and grades. Finally, students feel they are members of a larger community. A large majority of students at Western High School said that they felt they were part of something greater and could see how their efforts could truly help those around them. Based on all of the research and results, schools should encourage students to volunteer.

Dangers of Fun in the Sun

People enjoy spending time outdoors, but too much time in the sun is dangerous and can cause serious skin damage. The most serious example of this damage is skin cancer. According to the American Cancer Society, this disease is often a result of the sun's harmful ultraviolet rays. Although the damage from these rays may not be seen immediately in children, adults who spent a lot of time in the sun when they were children later have a much higher chance of developing skin cancer than those who did not. Therefore, parents should make sure that their children put on enough sunscreen before going outside. In conclusion, it is very important for everyone to understand the true danger of spending too much time in the sun.

My First Job

The happiest day of my life was when I got my first job last year. After college, I tried for six months to get a job with an advertising firm, but my luck was bad. Finally, one day my life changed. While I was eating a sandwich in a downtown coffee shop, my luck began to change. A young woman who was sitting next to me asked if she could read my newspaper. I said OK, and we started talking. She began to tell me about herself. She was an executive in a huge advertising company and was looking for an assistant. I told her that I was very interested in mass communication. She gave me her business card, and within one week, I got a job as her assistant. It was the best lunch of my life!

Unit 10 From Paragraphs to Essays

ELEMENTS OF GREAT WRITING

Activity 1, pages 175–176

Topic Sentences:

In the past, people did not live as long because they often died from bacterial infections, but this is not true today.

Because of antibiotics, people suddenly had longer lives and, therefore, time to accomplish more things.

After Essay 10.1

1. The topic sentence in paragraph 2 states that lives were worse before antibiotics; The topic sentence in paragraph 3 states that a longer life means more time to do more things. These topics support the writer's opinion in the thesis statement that antibiotics were the most important discovery of the last 100 years.
2. The writer discusses important inventions and makes the reader think first about what the most important invention was in the last 100 years (before saying what the writer thinks it was).
3. The conclusion repeats the ideas in the introduction and summarizes the ideas in the essay/gives an opinion about the impact of antibiotics.

Activity 2, page 176

Possible answers:

- I. Introduction (What is the thesis statement?) However, in my opinion, antibiotics are the most important discovery because they have allowed people to live longer.
- II. Body (topic sentence) In the past, people did not live as long because they often died from bacterial infections, but this is not true today.
- III. Body (topic sentence) Because of antibiotics, people suddenly had longer lives and, therefore, time to accomplish more things.
- IV. Conclusion (What does it do?) It explains that if there were no antibiotics, we would not be able to enjoy the quality of life that we have today.

Activity 19, page 189

Some words do not translate exactly from one language to another. In French, for example, there are two ways to say know. One is for knowing a fact, and the other is for knowing a person. English has the words make and do, but Spanish has only hacer.

In Spanish, you use hacer with a reservation and homework, but this certainly seems strange to an English speaker. Finally, the English verb miss is hard to translate well into some foreign languages. In summary, it is hard to translate certain words from one language to another.
